The study aimed to come up with proposals for the development of the services of the guidance and counseling unit in university housing (GCU). from the point of view of the students of Imam Mohammed bin Saud Islamic University, through the detection of social and academic problems and the economic situation experienced by students of university housing, and disclosure of the extent to which students benefit from the services of the guidance and counseling unit in university housing. In order to achieve these objectives, the study relied on the social survey method using the sample, the study used the survey tool to collect data from student preparation. The survey tool was applied to a sample of (140) university students from the university housing who were chosen in a deliberate manner. This study is a (descriptive study).

The study found that there is a neutral look at the students in each academic and social problem or the economic situation experienced by the students, as well as the existence of an average benefit from the services of the guidance and counseling unit in university housing.

The study concluded that students should be aware of the importance of guidance and counseling unit, as well as activating the role of the guidance and counseling unit in university housing, and encouraging students in university housing to participate socially through student activities within the university housing.
